MEDICAL INFORMATION

Mingan Island Cetacean Study, Inc. (MICS), offers excursions in which participants take part in field exercises which are, by their nature, physically demanding and include inherent risks and dangers. Beyond the potential hazards that can be encountered at sea in small open boats, one can incur the ill effects of motion sickness and cold due to varying weather conditions. You should be aware that medical services or facilities might not be readily available or accessible during some or all time during which you are participating on the trip.

The biologist guide will inform you of all safety regulations and will conduct all activities in a safe and prudent manner. The responsibility for a safe trip, however, does not rely solely on your guide – each participant must act in a manner that insures a high level of safety for each boat. You should call to the attention of your guide a situation which you perceive to be a potential danger for you or your fellow participants. This could include: broken equipment, having difficulty understanding or responding to instructions, discomfort due to motion sickness, cold weather conditions or general fatigue.

Pregnant women and children younger than 12 years are not accepted due to the possible rigors of the activity.

DISCLAIMER: MICS is not responsible for any injury or death and for loss or damage to any personal property for any reason whatsoever during any time periods associated with the trip/session. This includes any negligence on the part of MICS, its employees, its agents, and its servants during the time periods while traveling to the trip/session departure location, or any time period during or after the trip/session.

AGREEMENT: I agree to assume all risks involved in participating in the trip/session, including traveling before and after the trip/session. I agree to relieve MICS, its employees, its agents, and its servants of all liability for losses, damages, injuries or death. I am voluntarily participating in this trip with knowledge of the hazards involved. I acknowledge having read and fully understood this liability release form and sign it of my own free will. (For children under 18 years the liability release must be filled and signed by a parent or guardian)
